therapy is gaining importance due to its specificity towards cancer cells while sparing toxicity to off-target cells. Targeted therapy aims at delivering drugs to particular genes or proteins that are specific to cancer cells or the tissue environ-ment that promotes argued, this unidirectional arrow is simplistic (ie, gefitinib + epidermal growth factor receptor = targeted therapy), useless (the great majority of treated patients failed to benefit from what the laboratory called â€™targetedâ€™ generation of cell-line work having failed to detect the existence of epidermal growth cancer specimens). Wed, 18 Apr
